

All primary keys were chosen to be unique. customer_id was related to orders to better keep track of the purchase history of the customer. ticket_number was related to orders to keep track of which movies the customer is going to. item_id was related to orders to keep track of what concessions purchases the customer makes. movie_id was related to tickets to provide additional information on the kinds of movies preferred by the customer, when they prefer to go to the theater, and what film rating they go to the most.